Spring Forward With Your Real Estate Plans!

Spring is finally here, and with it comes a renewed interest in the real estate market for both home buyers and sellers. If you're thinking of moving this year, you'll be glad to hear that according to a forecast by the National Association of Realtors® (NAR), existing-home sales are projected to trend up in 2008, meaning a more positive outlook for the market.

Second Thoughts

There are many valid reasons to reject a potential home: a poor location, too few bedrooms, too many repairs. But there are other reasons that may make you initially overlook a property, which you may want to think twice about.

On The Move

With spring on our doorstep, many homeowners will put their homes on the market. Below are some of the most common reasons behind their decision to move. Perhaps you can relate.
